THAT GAYLOR

GIRL

Ginny Gaylor is a pint-sized glamour gal with a zest for outdoor living, outdoor men—and plenty of fun.

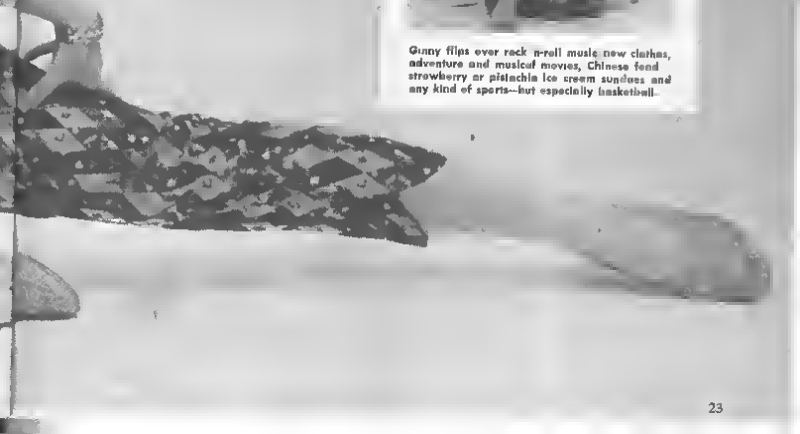
■ A vest-pocket bundle of curves—that's about the best way we know to describe this Gaylor girl.

Born in Africa Ginny lived within the sound of jungle drums until she was 17. Then her parents shipped her off to school in Paris where she was nipped by the drama bug and began studying for an acting career, modeling between classes to help pay expenses.

Later, with enough money put away she took her obvious talents here to the States, hooked up with a top model shop agency and Ginny Gaylor was on her way. Today she's one of New York City's top models.

MORE

Ginny flips over rock n-roll music, new clothes, adventure and musical movies, Chinese food, strawberry or pistachio ice cream sundaes and any kind of sports—but especially basketball.

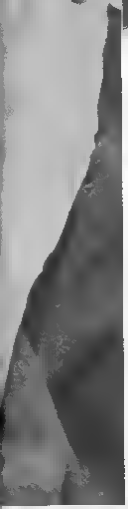


THAT GAYLOR GIRL

Standing a neatly packed 5'2", Ginny measures to 34 24 34 and keeps her figure trim and appealing by swimming, roller skating and bike riding whenever she gets the chance. Guys? You can bet I go for 'em," says Ginny "but my guy has to have a couple of primary traits—a good sense of humor and a really affectionate way about him.

Now that's not asking too much—is it? ●

This Gayler girl is definitely looking for a guy. "But," says Ginny, "he's got to have a great sense of humor, like outdoor sports and know how to be affectionate—to me!"



MARILYN Hanold, this month's spotlight girl, is more than enough to thaw out anybody's cold winter blues. Now, with all the trees and shrubs budding, and everything turning green, the winter's blizzards and frigid temperatures seem a thing of the past. To clinch the case, Marilyn, strictly an outdoor girl, recently went for a romp in the woods and came up with a walloping case of spring fever. "This is the most wonderful time of the year," she said

Spring
